What is your vision for the Cook Islands in 100 year's time?

Central Policy and Planning Office (CPPO) staff members Valentino, Rebecca Ellis, and Charlene Hoff visited BTIB this month from the Office of the Prime Minister (OPM) to share their views on the well-being, their visions for the Cook Island, and how we could get there. They are responsible for implementing sound processes and policy advice on the national sustainable development goals, the direction and governance of the Cook Islands. It was an opportunity to ensure national policies including strategies align with the NSDP and influence government priorities. BTIB was one of 20 agencies that shared our views, ideas, suggestions and gave input to help guide our Cook Islands National Sustainable Development Agenda 2020+. Some of the proposed goals includes Technology, Innovation, Enterprise, and Trade. These are applicable to BTIB's functions and will contribute to the future betterment of the Cook Islands.

The Cook Islands National Sustainable Development Agenda 2020+ will have a 100 year vision. It will be accompanied by 25 year frameworks to help action united movement across Cook Islanders to help achieve this 100 year vision. Deputy Prime Minister Hon Mark Brown says, "we must navigate towards a new future, a future that will become more certain throughout this consultation process,". The NSDA2020+ is working towards a 100-year vision with two key periods. The 25 year frameworks, will be developed to suit the different generations and their circumstances however will focus on working towards the 100- year vision. Within these will be five-year plans that will monitor and track progress, ensuring we are on the right track. 100 years seems like a long way away but it is working towards a vision of well-being for the Cook Islands in all aspects.

To keep you in the know and well informed about what's happening with our NSDA2020+, OPM office has regular updates for you in the areas of communications, consultation, development, research and general update.
